The Opioid Epidemic: How the Nation Set Up then Failed to Stop One of its Worst Public Health Emergencies

Breakout
Session 1

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

1:15 PM – 2:45 PM
Valley of the Sun C

For over 2 decades, an opioid epidemic has plagued the U.S., killing more than 600,000 Americans who were taking prescription and illicit drugs. Since 2017, opioid misuse has been the basis for a national public health emergency declaration and multiple state emergencies. In the shadow of the COVID-19 pandemic, the opioid epidemic has charged forward. Over 100,000 Americans died from the use or abuse of drugs (the great majority of which were opioids) in 2021 alone. Join our panelists for a discussion on (1) how the opioid epidemic has impacted the U.S.; (2) how political influences have handcuffed the DEA's ability to curb the epidemic's effects during multiple Presidential administrations; and (3) the epidemic's uncertain legal landscape, with thousands of lawsuits based on novel legal theories, and many large settlements involving Big Pharma, drug distributors, and others, of varied success.
